From the laterite ruins in Ban Khai District, archaeologists believe that Rayong's history dates back to the 15th century. The Khmer empire had ruled the area since 957 AD and Rayong was mentioned historically during the reign of King Ekkathat. On January 1766, Phraya Vajirapakan or Phraya Tak, alongside 500 of his soldiers, drove the Burmese army out of Ayutthaya. They headed east and took control of Rayong. The soldiers honored Phraya Tak and acclaimed him as "Phra Chao Taksin" at Wat Lum Mahachai Chumphon, before marching on to Chanthaburi.

Rayong province is renowned for its sizable stretch of coastline, which covers a distance of about 100 kilometres and is home to many coastal development projects. The majority of the area, which covers a total of 3,552 square kilometres, is taken up by plains, alternating with uplands and hills. The province is an abundant source of marine life, and 49 active local fishery groups are situated in the province. Tourists can visit Rayong's preserved historic old town and taste the fresh, flavourful fruits which have made the province one of Thailand's crucial agricultural tourist destinations on the East coast.

Ko Man Nai

Klaeng, Rayong

Ko Man Nai

The largest island in the Muko Man (Man Islands), covering an area of approximately 209,600 square metres, located closest to the coast. The island's collection of attractive bays includes Ton Makham Bay, Hin Khot Ya Bay, Kong Kang (Mangrove Bay) with sandy beach, and Na Ban Bay, and they are unique for their coral reefs.

Ko Man Nai is the location of the Marine and Coastal Resources Research and Development Centre in the Eastern Gulf of Thailand, Department of Marine and Coastal Resources, under the royal initiatives of Her Majesty Queen Sirikit The Queen Mother. Her Majesty was so concerned about sea turtles facing extinction, and their natural breeding grounds were becoming increasingly rare, so in 1979 she donated Ko Man Nai, her personal property, to the Royal Thai Navy to establish the "Her Majesty's Sea Turtle Conservation Programme" as a centre for conserving and breeding sea turtles. The Queen also gave green turtles and hawksbill turtles for breeding and reproduction.

In 2002, the Programme was renamed the “Marine and Coastal Resources Research and Development Centre the Eastern Gulf of Thailand” and supervised by the Department of Marine and Coastal Resources, Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment. The Conservation Centre is located in the northern part of the island.

The centre features a Sea Turtle Museum Building where there is an exhibition on the life, habitat, and way of living of sea turtles, as well as specimens of stuffed sea turtles, such as giant leatherback turtles found in the nearby areas and around the island. There is an incubator, parent breeders’ tanks, a medical centre for various kinds of sea turtles like Olive Ridley turtle, Hawksbill turtle, and green turtle, and sterile tanks for a turtle nursery. Tourists can swim, stroll, and skin-dive to watch corals around the island on a one-day trip basis, as no one is allowed to stay overnight on the island.
